

Keep your business on track with Remote Access Services

The ability to continue with business-as-usual, when business is decidedly not usual, is critical to robust business continuity. But you can't just send your employees home and hope for the best - you need to provide them with a secure remote workstation where they can connect and collaborate as easily as if they were in the office.

Precisio's Remote Access Services provides your business with a safe, secure remote system that can handle your new geographical changes—without even setting foot in your building.

Access your business systems from anywhere, on any device

We create a bespoke remote access solution that enables your teams to collaborate and continue working with minimal downtime. You're able to access all your necessary platforms and databases, workspaces, and even print remotely, enabling your staff to work connectedly from anywhere.

Avoid business downtime with fast deployment

With a seamless transition, we can have your new remote working solution up and running in matter of hours. We can help you download the apps, software, and configure your systems that enable you to stay online even during major business disruption, and help you get your teams up and running faster. It's easy to scale, too. Once set up, we can help you add on any new users as needed, at the click of a button.

All you need is an internet connection

You don't need to buy any new equipment or peripherals for your business—all you need is your existing computer and an internet connection. All you do is download one app, and we can set up and configure comprehensive remote access for you and your teams, wherever you find yourself working.

You get a secure, private network for your business

Operating a remote network for your business means that your data is stored securely in a cloud network. These have higher security measures and encryption services than a typical business network, and ensure your business' data is updated, secure, and easy to access, without the need for being in the office. Your data is stored securely in the cloud, so there's less risk of data loss than if you store it on your computer only.

No in-office access necessary

Our remote working solutions mean all your IT systems can be rolled out from one remote location, wherever you are. We provide a turnkey solution for businesses, which includes all the operational and communication aspects you need, to provide holistic remote network services—without the face-to-face.

It's cheaper than traditional IT services

One of the big benefits of setting up a remote network for your business is that it can be cheaper than traditional IT services. Instead of having your IT guy come and set up all your devices, we can access your system from one remote location, and solve any issues remotely. We're completely across your unique requirements, so we can keep your network running quickly and reliably and at its optimum capacity, enabling your business to continue as usual.

We're there when you need us

Just because you're working remotely doesn't mean you don't get support. Your on-call remote technician covers everything from networking issues, to virus and malware problems, software and network maintenance, and strategy network consulting.

Build your business' remote capacity with Precisio

Precisio is here to help your business navigate its changing work environment, and deliver robust, flexible remote network access services for your teams.
